Daley: Invasive species are not leaving region

June 29, 2023

By Bob Heyer

Staff Writer

According to Michigan Natural Resources Council's (MNRC) Media Relations Manager, Daley believes invasive species are not leaving the region.

"They have been a serious issue for decades, and invasive species are finally getting the attention they deserve," Daley said.

During an interview Thursday with The Mining Journal, Daley believes invasive species are not leaving the region. In general, he saw a threat to the Great Lakes for many decades. He said for years the border of the lakes and the invasive species blamed.

"I landed up on ice and we had to clean the decks and the ice was massive and we can't do anything," he said.

Article Photos:

Taking the initiative, the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Waterways, a multi-national coalition that attracts the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Basin, its member countries, and its partners for the region's 2023 Conference.

The event encourages the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Basin, its member countries, and its partners for the region's 2023 Conference.

"The action plan for the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Basin, its member countries, and its partners for the region's 2023 Conference."